AIL Retiree NET NEWS.....

Those who showed up for the HF AIL Retiree Net on 03/28/95

WA2AXO.. W5TRS..W2MVT/4..AF9Q

The Net opened at 12:25 P.M. EST. All were Q5 at this end.
. AF9Q (Warren) A friend of Warren's has had an Asteroid name after him.

Warren says that that it is faint enough that he has the only system that is powerful enough to see it and get a photo of it. ( What do you have out there Warren, Mt Palmor??) The name of the Asteroid is BREWINGTON

5799. Last reports tell us that Warren took 13 photos of the Asteroid and some of them are good. It took him 6 hours to find the darn thing.

. K2REX (Marc) checked into the Internet to state that he was suffering with a cold or flu. Hope all is well by now Marc.

. W5TRS (Hank) Hank got his VCR working, found it was the cable connection that caused the problem. He also sent for two books. One on MSDOS and the other one on WINDOWS. So he will be busy reading and learning about the in's and out's of his new computer. He also was out there cutting down a couple of pine trees that bent over in the winter from the snow.(Thats something that we missed here in NY.)

W2MVT/4 (Hank) He related to us about his physical condition. He has a problem with his Testosterone. his psa has continued to climb to 1.5. He is taking some kind of shorts that cost him 400 dollars apiece.

RADAR

Radar was the name given during World War II to an electronic system by which radio waves were bounced off an aircraft in order to detect its presence and locate its position. The term is an acronym made from the fuller term radio detection and ranging. A large number of researchers helped to develop the devices and techniques of radar, but the development of the earliest practical radar system is usually credited to Sir Robert WATSON-WATT.
